

Passport Technology partners up with the European Casino Association

Brussels, xx June 2017 – The European Casino Association (ECA) welcomes London-based Passport Technology as newest partner as of June 2017. The company is a leading developer of technology-based products and services for worldwide payments, gaming and financial services markets. Its international portfolio includes attended payment kiosks, cash access systems, server and web based analytic technology and interactive content and services.

By becoming a partner of the ECA, Passport Technology joins the land-based casino community represented by the ECA, sharing the aim of a strong and lively casino industry in Europe. Alongside other ECA partners, they become a part of the association's future development and enjoy direct access to the ECA's events among many other benefits. For the ECA, the close cooperation with the European gaming industry – from manufacturers to service providers and new entrants – is crucial in successfully developing a thriving industry.

As ECA chairman Per Jaldung commented “We look forward to working with Passport Technology and discussing the crucial topics where we share common interests, from responsible gambling to anti-money laundering and the use of cash within our industry. Operators and suppliers are only able to successfully develop by working together to find strong and responsible solutions, which is our aim with this partnerships.”

As Passport Technology's chairman Scott Dowty commented “We are delighted to partner with the ECA and eager to collaborate with operators and suppliers on innovative new processes and technology. The ECA is a world class organization and Passport Technology looks forward to being a contributing partner”.
